Abraham Kiprop Mulwo, PhD

Acting Dean, School of Information Sciences,
Moi University
Senior Lecturer/Researcher

I currently serve as the Acting Dean, School of Information Sciences, and Senior Lecturer (Development Communication) at Moi University where I have taught since 2004. I also serve as a member of Nandi County Assembly Service Board where, amongst other responsibilities, I assist in strengthening public communication and citizen participation in County Governance. Until recently, I also served as a member of the Task Force on Improving Government Information and Public Communication, which was tasked with advising Kenyan government on how to improve communication with its citizens. Additionally, I am also the Partner Coordinator of the Science Communication project offered by Moi University in Partnership with SciDevnet (with funding from Borsch Stiftung) that aims to train Journalism students on how to report scientific information in mainstream media.
